by the United States Department of Justice Anti-Trust Division which charged, one count of Conspiracy to Commit Mail Fraud (18 U.S.C. § 371); one count of Mail Fraud (18 U.S.C. §§ 1341, 1346); two counts of Wire Fraud (18 U.S.C. §§ 1343, 1346); one count of Conspiracy to Commit Money Laundering (18 U.S.C. 1956(h)); one count of Obstruction of Justice (18 U.S.C. § 1503); and one count of Making a False Declaration Before a Grand Jury (18 U.S.C. § 1623).

Moser, a successful Little Rock tax planning attorney formerly associated with the law firm of Jewell, Moser, Fletcher, and Holliman and later Moser & Associates, reached in February 2004 an agreement with the government to plead guilty to the aforementioned tax conspiracy and Michigan based money laundering charges. At Moser's request the plea was to take place in Detroit. However, instead of appearing to enter his plea as agreed, he drove to Canada, flew to Paris and then to the country of Madagascar. Madagascar is an island country with a population of approximately 17,000,000 and is slightly less than twice the size of Arizona. It is the world's fourth largest island, just off the coast of Southern Africa east of Mozambique.

Moser's whereabouts were identified as a result of an investigation conducted by Special Agents of the Internal Revenue Service Criminal Investigation Division (IRS-CID), along with assistance from the Department of Justice Office of International Affairs, Bureau of Diplomatic Security of the U.S. Department of State, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), the United States Marshals Service (USMS) and the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). Moser was detained there by Malagasy authorities on March 15, 2004, and was held in a Malagasy detention facility until he was returned from that country and transported back to the United States via South Africa. It was during the manhunt for Moser that the theft of almost his entire client trust account was discovered.

"Anticompetitive schemes like the one that Moser participated in are damaging to the economy and are ultimately harmful to consumers," said Scott Hammond, Deputy Assistant Attorney General for the Antitrust Division's Criminal Enforcement Program. "This conduct, along with Moser's false statements and obstruction warrant the serious punishment handed down by the court today."

US Attorney Cummins stated, "This defendant committed a number of serious crimes, but without question the worst thing he did was violate the confidence of his legal clients. A client should be able to place unqualified trust in their attorney."

US Attorney Cummins praised all involved in the capture and prosecution of Moser, including First Assistant United States Attorney Sandra Wilson Cherry, United States Department of Justice Tax Division Trial Attorney Bob Kemins, United States Department of Justice Anti-Trust Division Trial Attorney Kevin C. Culum and lead investigator Special Agent Richard Elliott of the Internal Revenue Service Criminal Investigations Division.
